

ADAMS ACADEMY AND CLASSROOM CONNECTIONS

Tulani Smith, Principal
Mrs. Hamby, Secretary

Mrs. Shaw, Media Specialist, Editor

Did You Know.....

.....Hello! My name is Ali Abdul representing Ms. Thurman's class. This is Ms. Thurman's class news. When we had conferences, the students actually led the conference. We also started assignments called Type One and Beyond Type One. Type One is when the teacher gives you a topic and you write a whole page. A Type Two is kind of like a surprise quiz when our teacher gives us some questions on what you just learned. What I like about a Type One is our teacher doesn't grade punctuation and all you have to do is get one whole page. What I like about Type Two is it makes you think hard on what you just learned. And that's what's happening in Ms. Thurman's class.

.....Mrs. Gerber and her students have been learning how to graph objects by counting objects. Students have been arranging salt and fresh water activities on a Venn Diagram.

Salt Water	Both	Fresh Water
Swimming	swimming	swimming
Fishing	fishing	fishing
Boating	boating	cooking drinking boating washing

By Lamonte

Mrs. Medley's students have been creating timelines to find information. We can interpret the sequence of events from a time line.

Mrs. Johnson's students have written compare and contrasting paragraphs beginning with a topic sentence, followed by two comparing sentences, two contrasting sentences and a conclusion.

How are "The Rough Face Girl" and "The Talking Eggs" similar and different? "The Rough Face Girl" and "The Talking Eggs" are similar stories because they are fairytales and they have fairy God mothers. The difference between both stories is because "The Talking Eggs" didn't have an invisible being in the story and it didn't have a magic lake in the story and "The Rough Face Girl" didn't have any eggs that talk to throw it over her left shoulder.

I used details from the similarities and the differences about "Rough Face Girl and "Talking Eggs." By Tiara Rosier

"The Rough Face Girl" and "The Talking Eggs" are alike and different in many ways. In "The Rough Face Girl" and "The Talking Eggs", both have a princess. Both have magic in them. They are different because Blanch didn't get married, but "The Rough Face Girl" did get married to a prince. They are unlike because one has a mom and the other does not have a mom. One had a dad, but one didn't. By Imadeddin Hazizi

Inside this issue:

Mrs. Gerber's
Class

Ms. Thurman's
Class

Mrs. Hurdle's
Class

Mrs. Medley's
Class

Mrs. Rose's
Class

.....Did you know Mrs. Hurdle's first-grade students have been identifying words to describe Corduroy?

All About Corduroy

Corduroy is a brown, fuzzy bear. He's soft and comfortable.

Corduroy lives in a store. He's sad. He wanted an owner. No one wants to buy Corduroy without a button on his green overalls.

One day Lisa comes to buy Corduroy. Now he lives with Lisa. He has his own bed. Corduroy is very happy.

.....Did you know how Adams Academy has been celebrating "March Is Reading Month"? All students have been traveling through their books with a passport and might be looking forward to inviting Mrs. Smith to meet her reading challenge—which is to have pasta poured on her head.

.....Did you know Mr. Rose's fourth-grade students visit the Leslie Science Center for their study on Life Science. The students study a frog's life cycle using our very own Prospect Pond.

These Are The Good Things Going On At Adams Academy